Agency History/Biographical Sketch:

Karen Sidlow was a freelance journalist in the early to mid-1990s, and she also worked at several record labels. Some of the companies she worked at or with include Mercury Records, RIP Magazine, Cashbox Magazine, BAM Magazine, and Universal Music Group. She interviewed and wrote articles about several of the artists in this collection, such as members of Blind Melon. As a freelance journalist, record labels sent her press kits of artists before she would interview or write about them. She kept a lot of these press kits, especially those of bands she was a fan of.

Scope and Content:

Karen Sidlow collected these items during her work as a freelance journalist and while working at several record labels in the early to mid-1990s. The collection includes manuscript materials, stickers, buttons, press kits, photographs, artifacts, postcards, and laminated badges – all relating to bands or singers she liked and/or worked with. Some items are autographed with some personalized to her. Some items also have notes written on them for article and/or interview topics.
